ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I take this opportunity to express my gratitude to my Ph.D supervisor Dr Satyabrata Sinha. His indelible support, valuable feedbacks and commendable insights helped me to profoundly sharpen my arguments, think critically and have been instrumental in encouraging an academic appetite.

I would express my regards to the departmental Ph.D committee and the external experts for their constant support and insights through the regular Ph.D progress presentation over these years. I would like to especially give my heartfelt regards to the Head of the Department, Department of Political Science, Professor Abdus Samad Gayen for his encouragement and compassionate guidance.

I am indebted to my teachers Mr Nandalal Chakraborty, Dr. Aneek Chatterjee, Dr. Alka Acharya, Dr. Kumaraswami and Mr Soumen Chatterjee for their belief in me and their constant encouragement which played an integral role in my accomplishments, both in academics and in the larger sphere of life.

I am thankful for the help I received from American Centre Library, Kolkata, the US Consulate Kolkata and Institute of Foreign Policy Studies, University of Calcutta for providing me with necessary information and resources. I would like to extend special regards to all the academics, research analysts and government officials who have generously shared their opinion and views during the interview process which has greatly enriched my work and arguments.

I am incredibly grateful to some of my colleagues who have been pillars of strength and support in this journey by keeping me motivated to pursue my research despite the institutional workload.

Above all my deepest gratitude goes to my first teacher and forever guide, my mother. Her indomitable spirit and unbound love has been the source of all my efforts, tenacity, courage and accomplishments. My deep regards to my late grandfather who has taught me to look for a rainbow beyond the black and white of life. I express my special regards to my father who always believed that his daughter is special and tirelessly infused confidence in me. My heartfelt gratitude to my friend and husband for his unwavering patience and affection. I am forever grateful for the loving and supportive family with a special mention to my little sister for her boundless appreciation. Lastly, I express my gratitude to all the scholarly works and books that I had an opportunity to devour that profoundly shaped my thoughts, my writing skills and foremost me as a person.
