

Proceedings of the Faculty Part 10

My dear Sir,

I incline to think that the single candidate should be examined, if he is not out of terms in offering himself. It should in that case be explained to him that the medal will not be given unless the list of books which he is to be having read and used has been submitted to an examination and approved by the Council to receive the Medal. If any student has been working very hard with a view to the medal

It would be unjust to him to let him try to gain it, because others have not done the same, or knowing his superiority decline to contest it with him. I think that he may be called upon at once to give in the list of books he professes to have read (if that is the form in which the examination begins, as is probable) I am informed that the Court have made no objection whether being shown to be the examination.

Meanwhile, I will see Monro I get him to acceptance the opinion of the other members.

Y<sup>r</sup> truly

J. M. Mathews